About the La Crosse River Conservancy

This was the first property protected by Mississippi Valley Conservancy (MVC), with the first parcels acquired in 1999. LRC is now 381 acres, 168 owned by MVC and 213 (on both sides of the La Crosse River) provided through donated easements with the City of La Crosse. The property open to the public for hiking, shown on this map, is approximately 105 acres.

Much of the property is former farmland that was once used for pasture and growing marsh hay. When MVC acquired it, the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) provided some funding and technical expertise for restoration. Thanks to successful restoration work, this riparian marshland and forest habitat once again provides flood protection to neighboring cities and serves as a migratory refuge and breeding ground for countless animal species.

Trails are mowed regularly except when high water prevents access. The side trail to the mound (4) on the map) is closed from April 1 to August 1 to minimize disturbance of nesting sedge wrens. (Note: The mound is natural bedrock that was resistant to erosion as the rest of the river valley was formed.)
